

TOP TEN: Men Who Support Women Motorcycle Riders

Written by Becky Shimek

Behind every good woman there's a good man, some might say, and so we thought it was time to recognize the guys who welcome and encourage women to participate, learn, and ultimately share their love of riding. This list introduces you to a handful of men in the motorcycle industry who do just that.

#1 Bill Davidson has been a strong supporter of women riders for decades. The miles spent riding alongside his sister, Karen Davidson, is his true testament, and together they have logged thousands of miles sharing their passion for the open road with customers along the way. As the great-grandson of one of the Company's founders and VP of Core Customer Marketing, Bill has encouraged women throughout Harley-Davidson, industry and at events around the world to enjoy the freedom of their own two wheels. Bill's even passing down the moto gene to his 10-year-old daughter, Cara, who loves riding on the back of her dad's Harley for now, but can't wait to get her own Harley someday. The HD legacy left to women? The future looks shiny!

TOP TEN: Men Who Support Women Motorcycle Riders

Written by Becky Shimek

TOP TEN: Men Who Support Women Motorcycle Riders

Written by Becky Shimek

TOP TEN: Men Who Support Women Motorcycle Riders

Written by Becky Shimek

honorables mentions: [unreadable text]

TOP TEN: Men Who Support Women Motorcycle Riders

Written by Becky Shimek

High level of understanding, compassion, and a great firmness to events.

He is a very good listener and is very helpful. He is a very good listener and is very helpful.

He is a very good listener and is very helpful. He is a very good listener and is very helpful.